

THE committee of the American Bar Association which has been endeavoring to persuade Congress to relieve the Supreme Court from a portion of its business, has adjourned to meet on the 2d of February. They hope to be able to secure the establishment of an intermediate appellate court.

As a standard remedy for the permanent cure of chronic female complaints, English Female Bitters has won the grand prize over all competitors in the United States. Married and single ladies are delighted with its wonderful efficacy in relieving them of their troublesome pains and aches. If you need strength—if you wish an appetite—if you desire iron in your blood—if you are emaciated and wish to possess more weight—it is the very medicine you want.

A messenger from Caldwell, Kansas, reports that the cowboys who recently raided Caldwell and killed Mayor Mesinger, have been arrested by Indian scouts in the Indian Territory, and turned over to Sheriff Thralls, of Kansas.

There is Nothing Like It. The failing powers of digestion, assimilation, secretion and excretion, a restored to permanent health, strength and activity, by using Brown's Iron Bitters—a true tonic! a perfect strengthener! a sure restorer!

Secrets of Beauty.—Breathes there a man who does not love a beautiful woman? Breathes there a woman who does not love to be admired by man? No art can paint, no sculptor can chisel the dimpled rosy cheek, the lustre of the eye, the bewitching smile nor the long luxuriant tresses—these are nature's gifts to a beautiful woman. All females can retain their health and personal charms by the use of English Female Bitters.

Hannah Jane and Uncle Jake.—"Hannah Jane, does you see dat are tlen stuff? well, I am for to cure de headache, and store I took it, I thout hit was ben hot." "Well honey," replied Hannah, "haint hit hot shore nuff, and dit hit de headache?" "Yes Hannah," he responded, "hit stopped de headache in half hour and is de best stuff you ever drank, and ain't hot a bit. It's a white powder found in a little water and here is a bottle of it called Bailey's Saline Apertient, which cost me only 50 cents. Its pow'ful good, shore's your born."

There is some talk of the introduction into the Ohio Legislature of a bill for the licensing of saloons, similar in effect to the Pond resolution of last winter.

No one whose blood is impure can feel well. There is a weary, languid feeling, and often a sense of discouragement and despondency. Persons having this feeling of lassitude and despondency, should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify and vitalize the blood.

Mr. Coppage, a cattle dealer of Murfreesboro, Tenn., was killed by a train near Penick's Station, on the Knoxville branch of the L. & N. road.

Much serious sickness and suffering might be prevented by promptly correcting those slight derangements, that otherwise often develop into settled disease. When a cold or other cause checks the operation of the secretory organs, their natural healthy action should be restored, and inflammatory material removed from the system. Ayer's Pills accomplish this quickly, safely and surely.

Jesse George, of Philadelphia, left an estate worth $700,000 to various charities.

Those trying to break up the baneful habit of intemperance will experience great benefit from the use of Leis' Dandelion Tonic. It restores the brain, stomach and liver to normal action, and strengthens the will power. There is nothing that so quickly effaces the ravages of a long course of debauchery. It is recommended by many leading temperance advocates both east and west.

The New York Socialist Convention has adopted a constitution and set of resolutions.

A John P. King Manufacturing Company has been organized at Augusta, Ga., with Charles Estes as President. Capital $1,000,000.

Diseases of the Kidneys. Are common every where. Leis' Dandelion Tonic is a sovereign remedy for this class of ills. A trial will convince any one of the truth of this assertion.

A Daughter of William Seligman, the American banker, was married to Dr. Wasserman a Hebrew scientist, at Paris yesterday.

Samuel Piercy, leading actor of Edwin Booth's company, is lying seriously ill with typhoid fever, in Boston.

Mr. Manning's bill to reorganize the Supreme Court provides for its division into three branches, which are respectively to have charge of (1) equity suits, (2) common-law cases, and (3) admiralty and revenue cases and cases in which the United States is a party.

Whenever a case comes up involving a construction of the Constitution or a treaty, or is brought on a writ of error from the court of last resort in any State, it is to be considered by the full bench. Each division will consist of three judges; and if two judges in any division concur in a judgment, the decision is final unless some member of that bench desires it to be reviewed by the full bench. This right would, of course, be exercised only in a dissenting judge in one of the divisions would demand it, but only in case there was a grave difference of view between himself and his associates—that is, in just the cases where a review would be desirable. The great merits of the scheme are that it does not call for any increase of the number of judges or any new courts, and that it does not raise the pecuniary limit of appeals.

Among the anti-Mormon bills introduced into Congress will be one providing for challenges and oaths to jurors in trials for bigamy and polygamy. The object of this and all similar measures is to prevent such cases from coming, as used to be said in Congress, before "twelve unblushing polygamists" for decision. It seems to have escaped the lawyers who have considered the subject at Washington that the ordinary principle of the common law governing jury trials are quite sufficient to prevent polygamists serving on juries in polygamy cases, without any new legislation whatever. There is already a United States statute against bigamy, and upon an indictment under that statute no one would be competent to sit on a jury to try a bigamist who was conscientiously opposed to its enforcement—that is, who was a Mormon—any more than a man conscientiously opposed to hanging or d being taken as a juror in a murder trial. By extending all such persons, an anti-Mormon jury can be obtained, as was done in the Reynolds case years ago, and no statute could make the process any easier. But whether obtained in one way or another, such a jury would be packed, and any conviction by it ought to be revolting to our sense of justice. To break up polygamy in Utah by packing juries would be quite as bad as polygamy itself, and it is perfectly clear that no new statute can make the impeding of an anti-Mormon jury easier than it is now.

The project for a Tariff Commission is fast maturing in Congress. Mr. Morrill's plan for a Commission of nine members to be appointed by the President from civil life has been adopted by the Senate Finance Committee in preference to Mr. Garland's which contemplates a mixed body composed of three members of the House, three of the Senate, and three from unofficial life to be chosen by the six. The general idea of an unprejudiced and disinterested Commission to go carefully over the tariff schedules, gather information as to the effect of each duty on industry and trade, and report their conclusions to Congress, is received with a good deal of favor by the country at large. Congress may be expected to give it shape and effect, for two reasons—first the idea has evident merit and popularity; and second, its adoption will put off for a year at least a general discussion of the tariff question in its theoretical and practical aspects, for which most members are ill prepared. With the exception of a few dogmatists who are always ready to prance about on their hobbyhorses, the members of both houses would be glad to delay the arduous work of tariff revision until they are much better informed than they feel themselves to be at present. We therefore look for the passage of some Commission bill at an early period in the session.

Mr. J. E. Stone is a Democrat, and the clerk of the County Court of Austin, Miss. He employs one deputy, Mr. Jaques, and that deputy happens to be a Republican. The Democratic Executive Committee of the county recently met, and passed a resolution directing Mr. Stone to discharge Mr. Jaques and appoint a Democrat in his place. Mr. Stone replied that he could not comply with the demand of the committee, and said: "Were I to remove Mr. Jaques merely upon the grounds that he is a Democrat, I should only remove a faithful officer because of no offense in him, but only to satisfy some that are inimical to him, and deprive myself of the only officer I feel competent (within my reach) to discharge the duties of the office in my absence. I should be glad to comply with your request in some things, but when, as I think I am honorably bound to keep him in office to assist me, and cannot do without him, I must decline your request; besides, I could not do it without forfeiting my honor, and sinking myself in the eyes of all honorable men. If you mean in this threat that I must do it, and if I fail to do it that you will make war upon me, I have only to say that I accept the issue, and abide the consequences, come what may. I cannot remove him without losing all self-respect."

We may expect at any time now to hear that Mr. Stone has had his head shot off. This sort of independence conflicts with Bourbon ideas of civil-service reform. The case is, however, referred to Mr. Senator Pendleton, whose anxiety for the future of his country was recently unburdened in a four-hour speech on reform.

Sarsaparilla
Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-purifying, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effective alternative medicine known or available to the public. The success of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blisters, Itch, Tumors, Eczema, Ringworms, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul extractions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and induces new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.

It is fully to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

A WOMAN'S WORK.
The Reverend Ed. Cowley, of the Shepherd's Fold, has, it appears, his imitators in England. St. Paul's Industrial School was a charitable institution for boys, under the supervision of the London School Board who yearly sent a certain number of pupils to it. A few months ago two of the pupils tried to burn the place down. They were arrested and tried, and the London papers were filled with moral reflections upon the fiendish ingratitude which could break out in attempted arson and murder at an age when most children are hanging to their mother's knee. Fortunately, there was a shrewd, sensible woman in the Board, who did not believe these babies had gone about such devilish work without a cause. She unearthed the whole management of the school, past and present; the children had been kept on starvation diet, had been half frozen, gone in rags, and were kept from rebellion by a system of brutal abuse. The facts were so horrible that the Home Secretary has withdrawn the certificate from the school and closed it, addressing an open letter of thanks to Mrs. Surr for the great public service she has rendered.

The point of peculiar interest in this matter is that Mrs. Surr was fought back step by step throughout her investigation, not only by the managers of this school, but by the Board, who were anxious to cover up the facts from the public, to compromise with the authorities on their promise of amendment, to stifle inquiry at all hazards. They needed precisely as organized associations almost invariably do when discredited is thrown upon the humanity or efficiency of their agents, in which they put a blind trust. Their main object is apparently that it is better a few less insane or infant prancers should be maltreated than that the faith of the public should be shaken in their system. It is a singular fact that every investigation into the mismanagement of charitable institutions which has been made in this country for five years, such as those which disclosed the brutal outrages or neglect in the Philadelphia Almshouse, the Morgana Home, and the Catholic Orphanage in the same State, has been made against the violent opposition of the trustees—the very men pledged to watch over them in the interests of humanity. There is to be an investigation into the condition of all industrial schools in England, in which Mrs. Surr is to take an active part.

FOR THE COUNTY PAPER.
While in our day there is enacting the grandest drama of human life, accompanied by tragic woes too fearful to think of in Ireland, the fatherland of so many millions of Americans, and the world is ringing with cries for help—help to millions there who are standing a long siege against demonic oppression—shall we of Holt County remain deaf, dumb and motionless? No! Let us all aid this cause, the greatest yet that ever "sword bath" pleaded or trumpet blared proclaimed.

Let us never forget that our forefathers did especially direct an appeal to the people of Ireland when they themselves, poor and at bay, embraced the alternative—death or freedom from British oppression—and let us warmly remember this appeal was not made in vain as the streaming blood of Irishmen on every battle-field of our Revolution testified.

And now we are asked to do but little—give of our funds as we may feel disposed. The few cents you will give will help mothers and babes in Ireland to live free from the terrible pangs of hunger while holding out against oppression. Every cent you give will be accounted for to you, and will be sent to the Irish World office, and thence to the committee composed of men who are risking their means and liberty in the great cause.

The Government of France is taking the advice of an old adage, and in time of peace is preparing for war. The activity she shows in this direction occasions much alarm among her neighbors, and the large appropriations for heavy ordnance that have recently been made furnish a theme for diplomatic correspondence as well as newspaper editorials.

The final official figures of the population of the United States at the tenth census make the population of the thirty-eight States (not including Alaska or Indian Territory) 781,448.
